Target Audience:

This symposium is designed for nurses (acute, chronic, hospice, advanced practice) with an interest in palliative and end of life pain management practices.

Why choose to come to this course?

Pain management/comfort care is a primary clinical challenge for nurses — whether it is for patients with acute or chronic pain, patients with pain and addictive disease, or patients with serious disease in palliative care or end of life hospice. The Chicago Chapters of ASPMN & HPNA have partnered to present current evidence-based practices in areas that can challenge our patient’s care:

- Current legislative/prescriptive issues regarding opiate choice and dosing.
- Problematic symptom management at end of life.
- When and how to administer palliative sedation.
- Patients with opioid dependence or addiction — how do we properly assess and treat them when they have pain?
- Compounding pharmacy — can they offer new options to us to assist with pain control?

Program Objectives

1. Describe the sociopolitical pressures on prescribing and pain practices that may impede access to effective pain care.

2. Define the doctrine of double effect regarding the clinical practice of palliative sedation.

3. Identify the most common symptoms associated with end of life.

4. Determine how to manage the risk of co-existing addiction and pain.

5. Describe the role of compounding pharmacy in meeting challenging pain management needs.
